| Canada, conterminous with the United States, has developed economically and technologically on parallel with its neighbor to the south. Canada became self-governing in 1867, but retains ties to the British Crown. The country has 10 provinces and 3 territories, and its capital is Ottawa. Canada resembles the U.S. in its market-oriented economic system, pattern of production, and affluent living standards. Since World War II, the impressive growth of the manufacturing, mining, and service sectors has transformed the nation from a largely rural economy into one primarily industrial and urban. The 1989 US-Canada Free Trade Agreement and the 1994 North American Free Trade Agreement touched off a dramatic increase in trade and economic integration with the U.S. its principal trading partner. In 2007, the Nevada-Canada bilateral trade partnership total $1.5 billion. An estimated 61,250 Nevada jobs are supported by Canada-U.S. trade. Canada is the U.S.'s largest foreign supplier of energy, including oil, gas, uranium, and electric power. Given its great natural resources, skilled labor force, and modern capital plant, Canada enjoyed solid economic growth from 1993 through 2007. Buffeted by the global economic crisis, the economy dropped into a sharp recession in the final months of 2008, and Ottawa posted its first fiscal deficit in 2009 after 12 years of surplus. Canada's major banks, however, emerged from the financial crisis of 2008-09 among the strongest in the world, owing to the country's tradition of conservative lending practices and strong capitalization. | | | | | | | | |

| Renewables: | Canada has vast and varied natural resources including massive supplies of water, solar, wind and biomass. Canada has one-fifth of the world's fresh water and is surrounded by three oceans, providing nearly endless water resources. Its long coast lines and huge land mass give it some of the best wind resources on the planet. The land of the midnight sun is a natural for solar power. And forests cover 35% of Canada's land mass, the largest forested area on earth, providing a steady supply of feedstock for bio-energy. The country is the biggest producer of hydropower, generating 353 TWh/year, and exports 60% of its electricity. Its wind energy sector grew at an unprecedented rate of 51% between 2000 and 2006. Canada is a leader in solar air collection system development and commercialization. http://investincanada.gc.ca/eng/industry-sectors/renewableenergy.aspx |
